

What happens to your performance when your best self is not in the game? Achieving results and thriving across all areas in business and life is not easy. Just ask your employees. And if they can't give energy to what matters most to them, they are less engaged and effective at work. What if you could make it simple to help them clarify their priorities and produce results no matter what - in every role they play, year after year?

Best Year Yet's proven framework is a dynamic process that balances organizational imperatives with individual priorities. This unique, blended learning experience guides participants through a series of questions to create a vision, learn from the past, set a powerful mindset and attitude for success, clarify values, establish a major area of focus and finally, choose their all-important "top ten" goals for the next 12 months. Once created, their plans will come to life with our online software, resources and mobile app for yearlong sustainability. Employees and leaders will be more connected, engaged, productive and balanced as a result.

Outcomes & Learning Objectives

- Release and restore energy, motivation and improve self-awareness by acknowledging successes and disappointments
- Establish new belief and behavioral patterns that improve performance and relationships
- Shift in limiting paradigms to empowering beliefs to access full performance potential
- Clarity and a framework to apply learnings (personal and professional) for the next year
